Worse Crimes Ever Seen in Mexico His Plan, Is Belief Along Border.

 Continuous in the plan to recognize the constitutionalists.
 Future steps toward actual recognition of Carranza will be formal.
 Support, moral and otherwise, will be given by the United States and the other nations to support Carranza in power. It was intimated officially that an embargo on arms against Villa, Zapata and any other rebels would be ordered by the United States. The embargo plan was not discussed at the conference, however.

The next formal steps will be the official report by the conferees to their governments. Secretary Lansing said the other American actions might be announced recognition when the United States does.
 The State Department also officially announced that Carranza has agreed to general political amnesty to all rival factions, excepting a few leaders. The exceptions were understood to include Villa, Zapata, and Gen. Felipe Angeles, and a few other Villista leaders.

Election To Be Held Soon.
 Carranza has also agreed that all clergy, particularly Roman Catholic, may return to and remain in Mexico as long as they do not meddle in politics. Assumption of foreign indebtedness is also promised by Carranza, insuring payment of foreign claims aggregating $12,000,000.

The support to be accorded Carranza will include financial assistance in establishing a legal government. He has promised to follow the Pan-American policy of actual instead of de facto government. The presence of Carranza in Mexico City is not an essential condition precedent to his recognition, Secretary Lansing stated.
 European and other foreign governments, which have deferred to this Government's wishes in not recognizing any Mexican faction, are expected to follow the Pan-American policy. Villa will continue his armed opposition to Carranza, Villista delegates here stated.

Villa Plans Desperate Fight.
 Villa, it is believed, will make a desperate effort to force Carranza's recognition in the hope of severely defeating him. Since Carranza's recognition has been contemplated, Villa is known to have been rushing ammunition supplies across the border.
 Guatemala is maintaining a large patrol on the southern Mexican border, the State Department has announced. Ostensibly to prevent raids by Carranza, but no armed Mexicans are said to have crossed.

The position of Guatemala's soldiers was regarded significant in some quarters because of reports that President Cabrera of Guatemala, and General Carranza have had strained relations.

Villa Engages Bandits to Ravage Mexico in Effort To Stop Recognition Plan

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 10.—A campaign of banditry and lawlessness such as Mexico has never known before is forecast by those who believe they know the program of General Villa. Villa as good as admitted such plans in his expressions last night prior to setting out for the south, where he has assembled his forces that recently retreated north from Torreon and were assembled at Casagrandes, ostensibly for spreading into Sonora.
 From 2,000 to 3,000 men, with twenty-five cars of artillery passed through Juarez, and Mormon refugees from the Casagrandes district, forced to flee following the arrival there of the Villa troops, say they are about that number encamped there. Villa and his officers, however, claim to have sent 20,000 men to Casagrandes and to have them available now for "active service."

Men well posted claim that Villa cannot muster more than 10,000 men, but these constitute the worst elements in Mexico—former bandits, thieves and murderers. He has managed to hold all such who have joined his banner from time to time. These are to be turned loose upon the country for any act they wish to commit, merely to prove to the world, as Villa boasts, that Carranza cannot control and restore peace to Mexico.

Villa some time ago sent word to American officials in El Paso that "the recognition of Carranza might force me to disband my men, and I fear that they could not be controlled once they broke into small bands."

This was taken at the time as a threat. Since then, however, he has been planning just such a thing, according to Americans and others who claim to know his plans.

LESSONS FOR WOMEN IN BUYING PLANNED

Potash and Perlmuter to Tell Secrets For Aid of "Buy in Washington" Move.

The booster theater party planned by the business women's section of the Retail Merchants' Association to mark their inauguration of a campaign in connection with the "buy in and boost for Washington" movement will be held at the National Theater Monday evening, October 18. "Potash and Perlmuter" will be produced.

The executive committee of the section is now working out details of an advertising scheme to be presented in connection with the theater party.
 The committee is composed of Mrs. M. Brooks, chairman; Mrs. J. M. Aah, Mrs. Jeanne Kalka, Mrs. J. Stelbel, Mrs. C. E. Eichelberger, Mrs. Lulu J. Marckel, Miss V. Clark, Miss E. H. Howard, Miss Minnie E. Carroll, Mrs. Annie Rosen, Mrs. Mary Whelan, Mrs. Ham Adams, Miss M. Deane, Miss Mildred Bartholow, and Mrs. J. Nachman.

PRESIDENT AND BRIDE-ELECT AT GAME

The biggest event of the second of the games of the world's series at Philadelphia yesterday, between the Red Sox and the Phillies, was not the fact that the Red Sox won, 2 to 1, but the fact that the game was graced by President Wilson, his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt, and her mother, Mrs. Bolling. The photograph shows, left to right—PRESIDENT WILSON, MRS. GALT, his fiancée; MAYOR BLANKENBURG, of Philadelphia, and standing on extreme right, wearing soft hat, WILLIAM F. BAKER, president of the Philadelphia National team.

CHANCES IN BALKANS EVEN, SAYS MASON

Allies' Privilege of Landing in Greece May Play Decisive Part, Asserts Expert.

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A new war era, midway between the extremes of the European battlefronts, has been opened by the Austro-German invasion of Serbia. Three Germanic offensives have been developed along the Drina, save, and Danube rivers, but apparently the start has had to be made prematurely because of the quick move of the Anglo-French forces through Greece, to Serbia's assistance.
 Confidence in the power of M. Venizelos, shown by the allied diplomats at Athens, brought discomfiture upon them when M. Venizelos was compelled to resign the premiership. His retirement was due primarily to disapproval of his course by King Constantine, but there is little doubt that popular opinion supports the more cautious attitude of the Greek monarch.
 M. Venizelos is an ardent expansionist, whose supreme confidence in a privilege to extend along the Asia Minor coast is not shared by other Athenian statesmen.

Protest a Subterfuge.
 Probably in exchange for contributions by the allies toward the cost of Greece's mobilization, M. Venizelos tacitly consented, before his retirement from the premiership, to the disembarkation of allied troops on the Greek coast. A formal protest by the Athens government against the landing carried no weight, because it was obviously only a subterfuge to permit Greece officially to maintain her neutrality. The new Greek ministry has shown no evidence of repudiating the Venizelos agreement.

The allies have thus won the right to use Greek soil as a military base, even though they have failed to carry Greece into the war with them. This is a privilege of immense value, which may play the decisive part in the new campaign in the Balkans. Serbia is a mountainous country and with Anglo-French help reaching the Serbians via Saloniki, less than forty miles from the Serbian border, the German chances of victory are not more than even.

May Check Bulgaria.
 How important a role Bulgaria will play in the campaign is an unknown problem. The quick disposition of French and British troops in Serbia along the Bulgarian frontier might check the latter power from the outset, as Italy has been checked by Austria-Hungary. If this be the result, the German and Roumanian may fall in Bulgaria and overwhelm her. Certainly a considerable part of the Bulgarian army must be held as frontier guards along the Greek and Roumanian boundaries. Only a part of Bulgaria's strength can be used, therefore, against Serbia.

German Attacks Too Late.

With von Hindenburg's operations now become the only offensive that must be seriously resisted, the chances should favor Russia's retention of all the Dvina positions between Riga and Ivang.

A renewed French offensive in Champagne has pierced the German second line about midway between the two extremes of the active Champagne battle front. The victory, however, has only local value, and does not imperil the German line as a whole. In articles the Germans have made strong efforts to recover the ground recently lost at Loos. Only meagre results have followed a large loss of life. The large Artillery positions are probably well consolidated by the French and British and the German counter-attacks are being delivered too late.

Reventlow Defends Armenian Slaughter

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—Count Ernst von Reventlow, military writer for the Tages Zeitung, in an article in that paper under the headline "The Uproar About the Armenian Atrocities" begins:

"If Turkey considers it necessary that Armenian uprisings and other intrigues be suppressed with all means so that a repetition will be impossible, that does not constitute massacres or atrocities, but simply a measure of a justified and necessary character. The more justified and necessary, the more the fact that the Turkish empire is in its hardest fight for existence and has enough foreign enemies. To demand that it shall also nourish an internal enemy on its bosom, because that would suit the British and Americans, is to demand a great deal."

"We Germans have to give an account neither to enemies nor neutrals of what the Turk do with their Armenians or what the German consuls say about it. The place of the German empire and of every individual German is at the side of our Turkish ally, and that without criticism."

Miss Margaret Rouse Hurt in Motor Crash

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Miss Margaret Rouse, twenty-two, granddaughter of "Broadway" Rouse, formerly of Winchester, Va., was painfully injured in an automobile crash while returning from the Astor Cup race at Sheepshead Bay. The car in which she was riding collided with another machine in Brooklyn. She was taken to a hospital.

FOREIGNER TRAILS WILSON TO CHURCH

Man Expelled From Baltimore Edifice When He Displays Interest in President.

 ever, that the President and Mrs. Galt are seriously considering a day within the next four weeks.

Reports of an advance in the marriage date were attributed today to the desire of the President and his fiancée to avoid a stage of publicity incident to the engagement period. The trip to New York is understood to have convinced the President and his fiancée that the public intends to take a deep interest in all their activities, until the honeymoon is over. Some of the friends of the couple are said to have suggested that to avoid a continual round of newspaper stories—which are expected about every White House romance—the wedding date should be moved up a bit.

Mrs. Galt, of course, is expected to make the ultimate decision, but there is a belief in official and social circles that the wedding may take place within a few weeks instead of within a few months.

After seeing what he called a "capital game" of baseball at Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, President Wilson and his party, which included the future Mrs. Wilson, returned to Washington last night.
 The return from Philadelphia was made by special train, which covered the distance without stop, in three hours and thirty-five minutes. The speed at times was sixty miles an hour. The President shook hands with the engineer, L. G. Bramble, and thanked him for the ride as he left the car.
 "We've had a wonderful trip, haven't we?" said the President to newspaper men in commenting on the game and the New York visit. "I enjoyed every minute of the game. I was glad to get a run go across in the ninth, as it looked like there might not be a decision."

President's Fiancee Has Real Double in Her Niece, Mrs. Boyd

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Norman Galt, the President's fiancée, has a double. This was discovered here yesterday when the steamer Pastores took aboard passengers for Havana.
 "There's Mrs. Galt," excitedly whispered the dock throngs as a well-dressed woman closely resembling the Washington woman appeared.
 But it wasn't Mrs. Galt. The passenger was her niece, Mrs. George E. Boyd, of Patuxent, Md., whose husband was formerly counselor to the Panama legation in Washington. Before her marriage, Mrs. Boyd was Miss Elizabeth Bolling. She says she has been called "Mrs. Galt" several times since the President's engagement was announced.

D. C. MILITIA SHOTS WIN FIRST PRIZE

Lieut. Schmidt Breaks Tie With Illinois and Brings Honors Here.

First prize in the company team match at the State camp grounds, Jacksonville, Fla., was won yesterday by Company D, Third Regiment, of the District National Guard, according to a dispatch that reached this city today. Nearly every State east of the Mississippi is represented at the meet, which is under direction of the War Department.

The company team match called for ten shots rapid fire at 200 yards and ten shots slow fire at 600 yards. The Washington team's total was 371, which an Illinois team equaled, but a "possible" was the District could do in the regimental team match, which was won by the First Minnesota team. The local team included Lieutenants Schmidt, Gerber, Martin, Rees, and Sergeants Shields and Richardson.

Seven consecutive bull's eyes at a distance of 1,000 yards won the Leech Cup match for Quartermaster Sergeant J. M. Thomas, of Troop G, United States Cavalry. His score for ten shots was 102 out of a possible 105 points.

Lieutenant Schmidt	59	47	27
Sergeant Schriver	46	42	39
Sergeant Joyner	47	46	33
Sergeant Jensen	47	45	32

A wind blowing across the range at the rate of nearly twenty miles an hour made high scores unusually difficult.

Eight place in a field of thirty-three was the best the District could do in the regimental team match, which was won by the First Minnesota team. The local team included Lieutenants Schmidt, Gerber, Martin, Rees, and Sergeants Shields and Richardson.

MACHINISTS' WAGE COMPROMISE LIKELY

Conferences between Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and a committee representing the disarmed machinists of the Washington navy yard will be resumed on Tuesday, when the workmen will renew their demand for a more substantial increase in pay than that offered by the wage board.

N. P. Alfus, chairman of the committee representing the disarmed machinists of the Washington navy yard will be resumed on Tuesday, when the workmen will renew their demand for a more substantial increase in pay than that offered by the wage board.

The machinists were offered an increase of about 5 per cent in wages, this increase becoming effective yesterday, whereas they believe the increase should be 14 per cent, to make wages at the navy yard correspond with those paid by private establishments in this vicinity.
